Unibertsitateko ikertzaile eta irakasleei, agente legegileei eta industriako profesionalei zuzendutako 2017ko kongresuak piztu nahi du zinema glocala kontzeptuaren gaineko eztabaidea. Hain zuzen ere, tokian tokiko hizkuntzan errodatutako eta modu lokalean ulertutako zinemak, baina audientzia globalari zuzendutakoak.

Azken hamarkadetako zinemaren teoriak globalizazio, transnacional, trasnacional-osteko, diasporiko eta transregional bezalako terminoak landu ditu. Gainera, Ipar Ameriketako eta Europako zinemaren gaineko ikerketa luzeak bidea zabaldu du, tamainaz txikiagoak diren bestelako sormen praktika edo adierazpenak ikertzeko. Alabaina, bi indar horiek etengabeko aldaketa prozesuan dagoen munduko zinema markoa jarduten dute: globalizazioa eta horren kontra azaldutako mugimendu lokalak zein etnikoak. Hollywoodek eta estudio handiek kontrolpean duten merkatuan aritzeko arazo larriak dituzte jatorrizko hizkuntzan eta kultura-ikuspuntu propiotik istorioak kontatu nahi dituzten komunitateak. Jardunaldi hauen antolatzaileek uste dute, global zinemaren bitartez, posible dela bermatzea, ospatzea eta kritikoki aztertzea munduko kultura eta hizkuntza aniztasuna.

Aimed at academics, policymakers and media industry professionals, the 2017 conference will revolve around the phenomenon of glocal cinemas, understood as those cinemas conceived locally and in the local language, but aimed at a global audience. In the last decades, film theory has embraced concepts such as “globalisation”, “trans-national”, “post-national”, “diasporic” and “trans-regional”, and the long-established focus on North American and European cinemas has given way to analyses of lesser-known practices or creative expressions. Two forces operate today in the shifting landscape of world cinemas: globalisation and a reaction to this globalisation via the local and the ethnic. Communities that seek to tell stories from their cultural point of view and in their own language face extraordinary challenges in a market still dominated by Hollywood and other major industries. The organizers of this conference believe that it is through glocal cinemas that the world’s cultural and linguistic diversity can be affirmed, celebrated and/or critically examined.

Dirigido a investigadores/as y profesores/as universitarios, legisladores/as y profesionales del sector, la conferencia 2017 girará en torno al fenómeno de los cines glocales: cines concebidos localmente y en el idioma local, pero dirigidos a un público global. Durante las últimas décadas la teoría cinematográfica viene tratando conceptos como “globalización”, “transnacional”, “post-nacional”, “diáspora” y “trans-regional”. Mientras tanto, el clásico enfoque centrado en los cines norteamericanos y europeos está dando paso a la posibilidad de ahondar en prácticas y expresiones creativas de menor tamaño. Actualmente dos corrientes compiten en el campo del cine a nivel mundial: por un lado la glolabización, y por otro la respuesta a esta, desarrollada través de lo local y lo étnico. Comunidades que buscan contar historias desde su idiosincrasia cultural o en su propia lengua se enfrentan a extraordinarios retos, en un mercado dominado aún por Hollywood y otras grandes industrias. Desde la organización de este congreso creemos que, a través de los cines glocales, se puede reafirmar, celebrar y examinar de manera crítica la diversidad cultural y lingüística del mundo.
